

WILDBLUE

Accessing your Email account

You can check your email from anywhere that you have an internet connection. Just go to <http://webmail.meekercoop.net>. You will be prompted to enter your username and password. You can then look and work with your email account as if you were at your own computer.

You can check only one email account at a time. You must re-log in for each account if you want to check more than one email address.

This is very handy when you are away from home and want to check in on your email accounts. You can try this out on your computer at home to see how it works.

Changing your password/adding new accounts

If you want to add additional email accounts or change your password (we encourage you change your original password to something new at least once), you may do so by going to admintool.meekercoop.net. Here you will also be promoted to enter your username and password. Your username for this function is your_account_name@meekercoop.net. You will then have access to your account where you can change passwords, modify and set up new email accounts.

Email accounts other than the original one set up at the time of WildBlue installation are called Child accounts, because they fall under the main or “parent” account.

If you add an email address in admintool, you must also set the address up on your own computer in Outlook or Outlook Express, whichever you use. You will need to know these two addresses to set them up. They are also listed on your account information sheet.

Incoming Mail Server: pop.meekercoop.net
Outgoing Mail Server: mail.meekercoop.net